“To begin is the most important part of any quest and by far the most courageous.” ~ Plato

Dear Fellow Questers ,

Take a few moments now to reflect with me on times when you started something new, began your spiritual search, or took a different path than the one you were on (maybe for a long time). Look and see if you didn't have to muster some amount of courage. Didn't you have to put faith into that first step as you probably moved trepidatiously into the unknown?

I remember my first sermon ever, given in the Unity Village Chapel to my seminary classmates and Unity Village employees. It didn't seem to matter how much preparation I did – which was a lot. My knees still shook when I got up to deliver that message.

I remember the first Beauty Show I did as a sales representative. It required all the courage I could muster to go into the home of people I did not know. And, over the course of four years, it never became easy. Still, I have zero regrets. I apparently signed up a long time ago to apprentice myself to courage. Didn't you?

Actually, I believe that when our soul chose to take life as a human being, we chose to apprentice ourselves to courage, to new beginnings, to finding out what we are made of. We chose to step into a Sacred Quest to discover our full spiritual potential by testing ourselves in the world.

The world and life invite us to become artists; to shape a larger life, a greater consciousness at each stage of our lives. Life invites us into living creatively, boldly, and fully, each in our own unique way, experiencing tastes of heaven in this life, in this now moment, in this choice, in this courageous next step.

What invitation is calling you now? What Quest is knocking at your door? What invitation asks you to go deeper, live larger, take some new step? My prayer is to say “yes”. I hope yours is, too .

With Love,

Rev. Sharon
